"A Time for Us"

Foreword

A biblical quotation, one oriented to school life, is the theme for this year's Weicon.

"To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven," declares Ecclesiastes 3:1. The succeeding verses speak of "A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; a time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up; a time to weep, a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; a time to rend, and a time to sow, a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace."

This portion of Ecclesiastes has been adopted to a modern setting, showing that there is "A time to study, a time to relax, and a time to grow," during high school years.

The Weicon theme, modified from Ecclesiastes, therefore becomes "A Time For Us."

A Time for Decision:

Young people have always been faced with choices in a world which seems confusing because that world is constantly changing. When faced with such decisions one must examine his own sense of values and be guided by those moral truths which never really change.

For these moral and spiritual values man has consistently turned to his religious teachings and writings for personal guidance. The Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, and the Golden Rule have continued through the centuries to light the way when man was faced with making the right choice in whatever circumstances he may have found himself.

You have shown mature judgement in turning to the Bible for a theme to express your guiding philosophy for a successful school life amid the many alternatives and pressures which challenge a high school student today. Surely, if you have learned to live by the wisdom of "For everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven," your high school experiences will have prepared you well for the endeavors and vicissitudes of life.

Sincerely,

Administrators Comment on Weicon's Theme

To be wise in the use of time is the ultimate in wisdom. I would urge you to treat as more precious than gold the priceless treasure of time. Each new hour is a new opportunity for aspiration, for endeavor and for achievement; for adding something to the world's wealth and to your own substance. Time is the raw material of all human achievement. Every grain of sand in the hourglass is a part of your life that, once gone, can never be called back again. Therefore use every golden moment toward some useful purpose.

Terry W. Reber
High School Principal

Congratulations to the Senior Class on their sponsorship and ever improving yearbook. The staff deserves particular credit for selecting an outstanding passage for its guide. Long editorials or theses could be written on this theme. Space permits comment only on a small passage--"To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven". The season at hand is graduation, and so this time is spent in reflecting on the purpose which is personal development. We rejoice with you on your course so far. May we wish you well in the future, for personal development is a never ending experience. As you meet each new experience, may you never forget to give praise to the source of your guide. Lots of success and happiness.

Norman B. Dinger
Assistant High School Principal

"A time for you"
requires an education
in two directions-- an increasing light
upon the nature of one's choices
and a stockpile of ideals to inspire
still better choices

Everywhere and at all times volitional habits depend first; on what the stockpile of ideals is which you have
and second; on habitual coupling of several ideals
with action or inaction

Your school and other related institutions have provided the backdrop upon which you can use the stockpile of ideals and for selection of endeavors
that label this particular moment
--"A time for you"--

Best wishes to class of 1967

CURRICULUM

A Time To Learn

Interested "Lit" students busy at work.

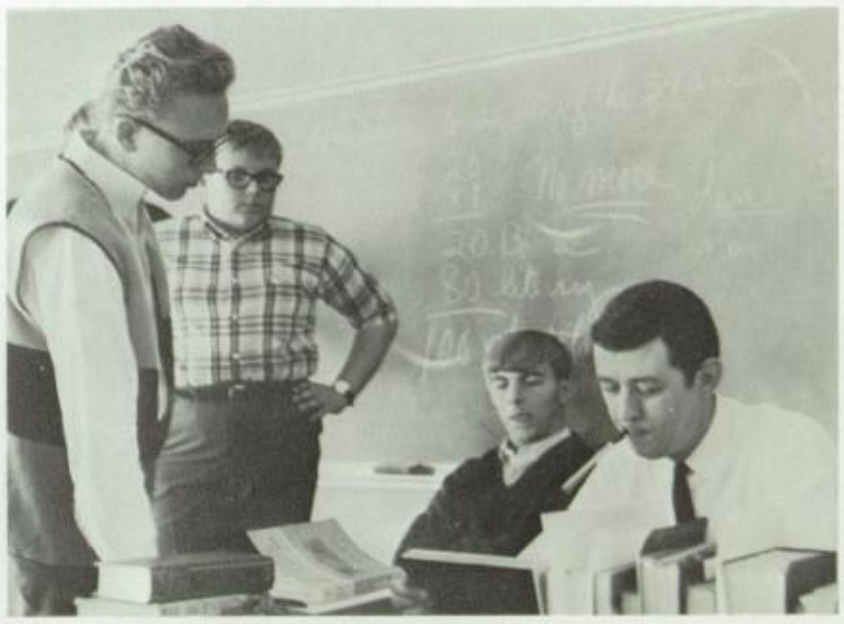
Marilyn and Kenny work busily to make Medieval Literature come alive.

English Department Aims High for Betterment of Students

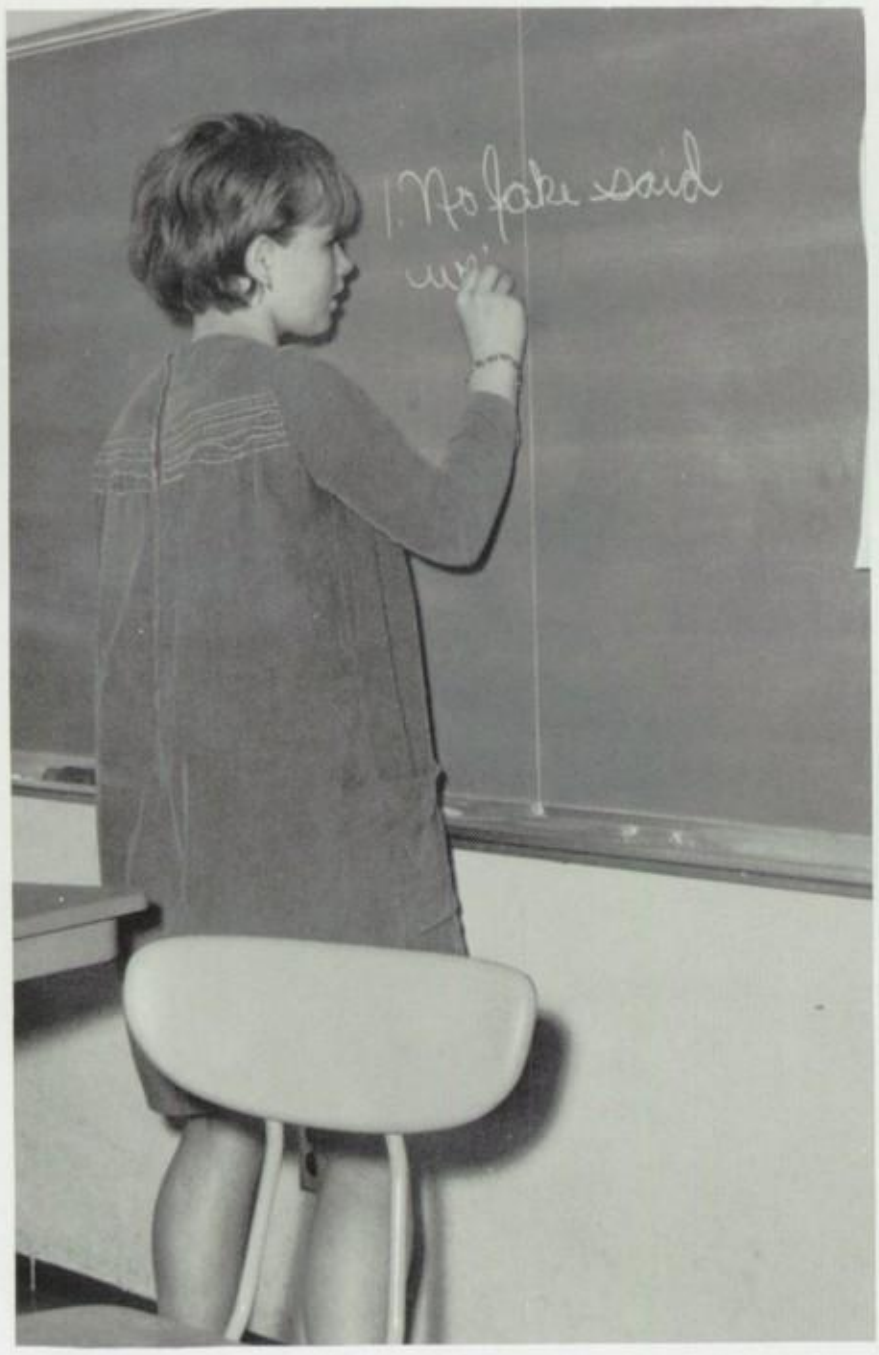
One of the greatest problems in the teaching of English is the "unlearning" of incorrect usages to which one is constantly exposed, both at home and among our peers in school and in the community. Add to this the complexities of English and the various levels of acceptable usage and the task of teaching correct English becomes increasingly difficult.

Our aims are high; our success in meeting these aims is measured by the success gained by our pupils after high school.

"But Don, it's only a four line poem!"



"No kidding guys, English Lit is fun . . ."

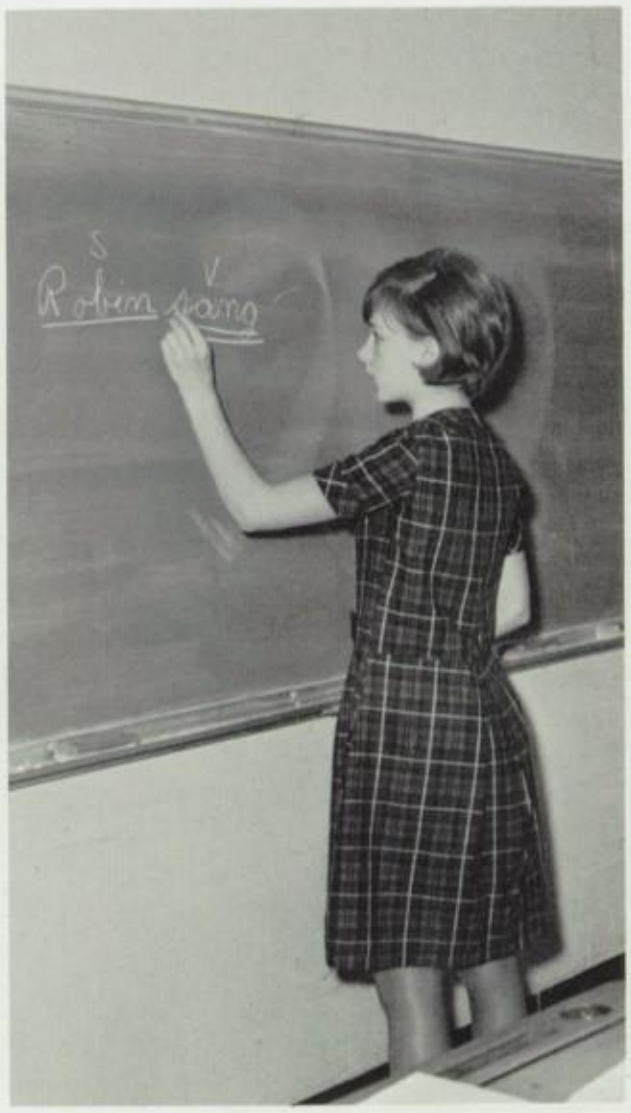


Writing sentences correctly is an essential part of English.

Mrs. Hummel conducts a typical English class.

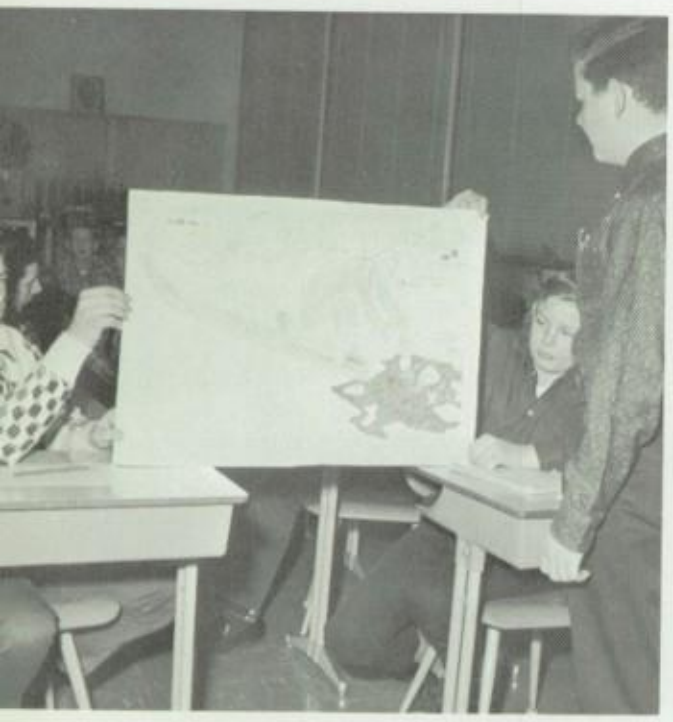
Mr. Jenkins points out importance of English to eighth graders.

English students concentrate on difficult assignment.



J. Gundrum learns the parts of speech.

History Enriches Students' Knowledge Through Varied Programs



Political cartoons often explain things better than words.

Keeping accurate notebooks in Mrs. Suhr's History class is important.

The Social Studies Department objectives are to introduce the student to his "own world of today."

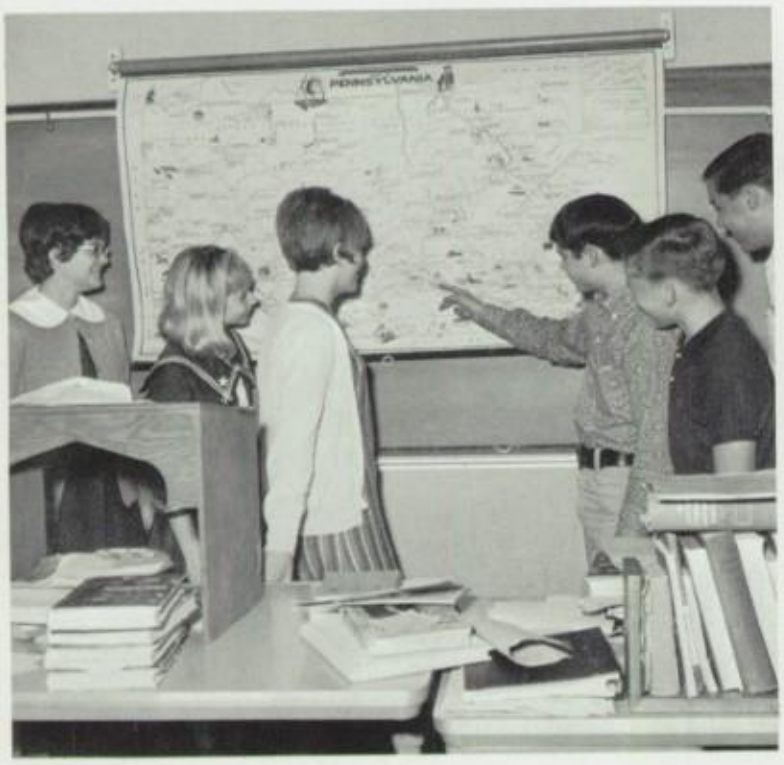
The student must have a knowledge of the various cultures of the world and to understand his distinctive American culture.

If we are to create and preserve a society with equal rights and opportunities for all, a good citizen must have a working knowledge of our government.

Mr. Gibson uses modern projection machine to aid juniors in their World Cultures studies.

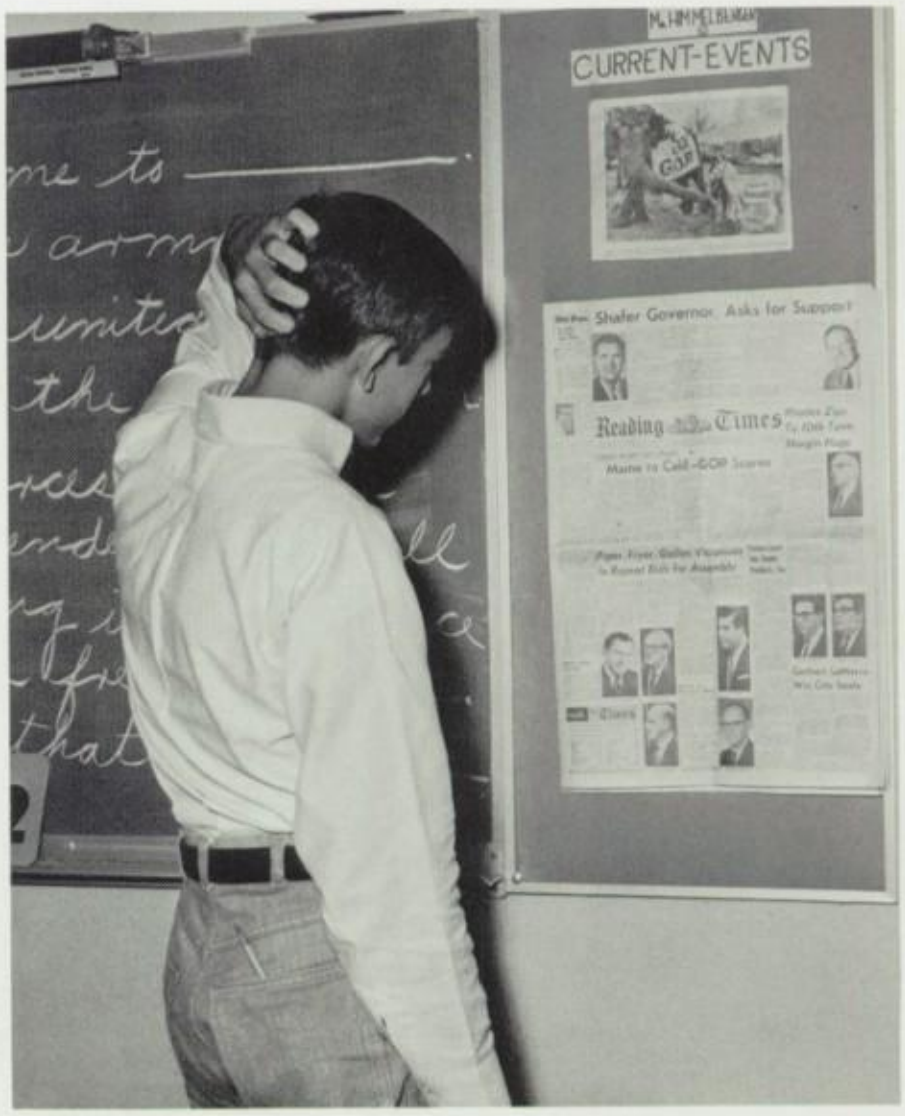
Keene and Ressler identify location of Vietnam. Mr. Seltzer helps.

Seniors observe trial procedures at Reading Court House.



Civics classes learn of the founding and the growth of Pennsylvania.

Bill Master shows that the sun does not rotate around the earth.



History is a mystery to some people . . . and a challenge to others.

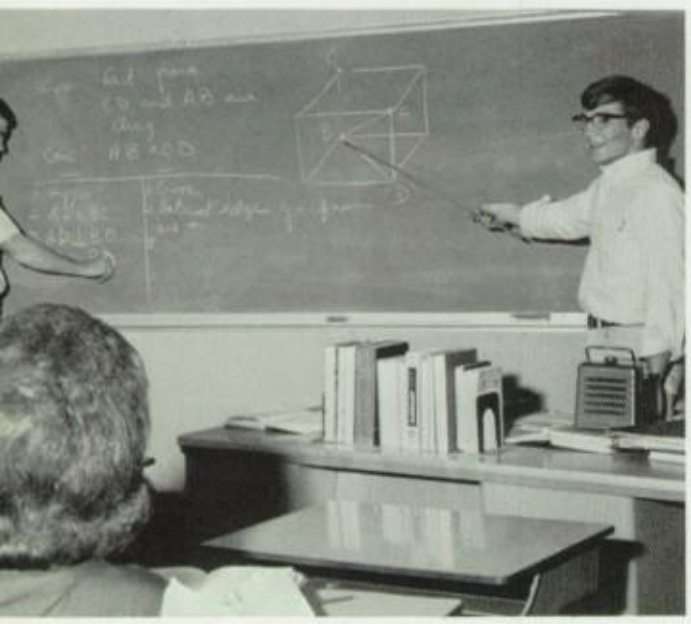
Learning the geography of a country is as important as learning the history.

Utilizing the Theories of Math

It may seem unwarranted to speak of romance in connection with a subject commonly supported to be as dry and prosaic as mathematics. The dictionary defines a romance as a "fictitious and wonderful tale." The tale which we relate is indeed wonderful, but it is not fictitious. It is true and it is the kind of truth that is stranger than fiction.

This truth is to assert that the perfect mathematical system, with all its implications and developments, is in many respects the greatest achievement of the human race, greatest in its scientific implications, as shown by the far reaching investigations to which it has given rise, and greatest in usefulness as a servant to mankind, as shown by its underlying relation to practically every other science.

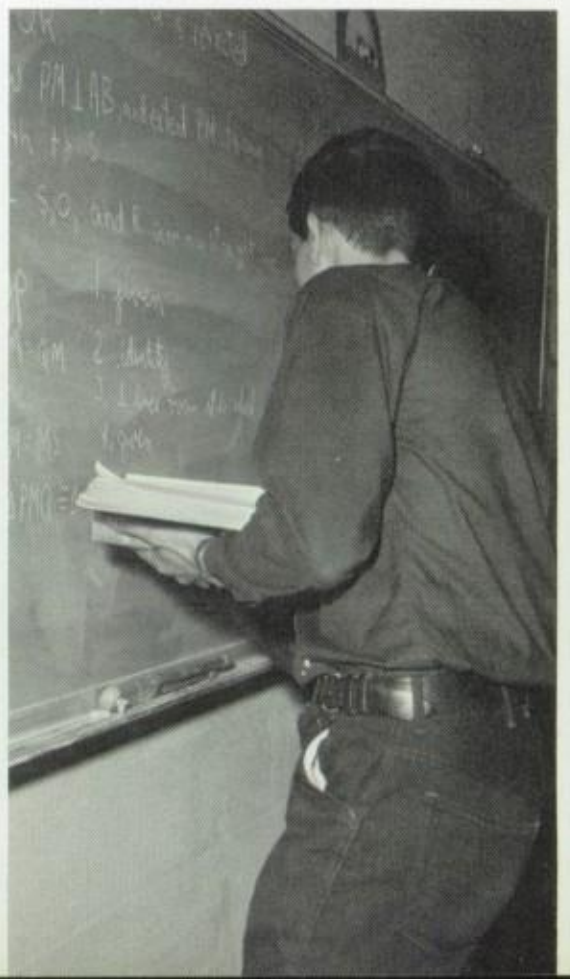
S. Schaeffer and K. Snyder work with surveying equipment.



G. Wentzel and D. Miller demonstrate a difficult math problem.

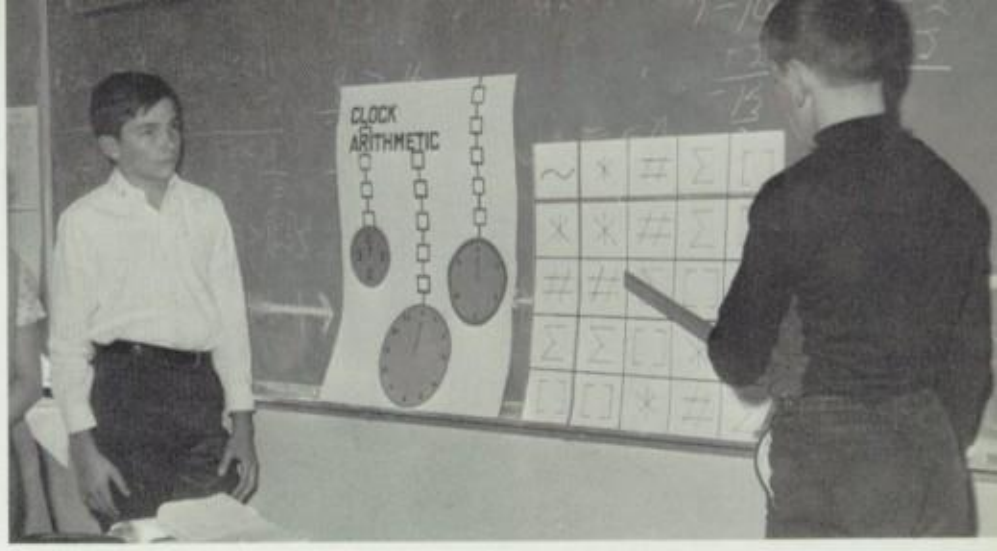
Tim Lutz and Jane Speicher discuss theorems of interior angles.

Students display some of their projects from Solid Geometry class.

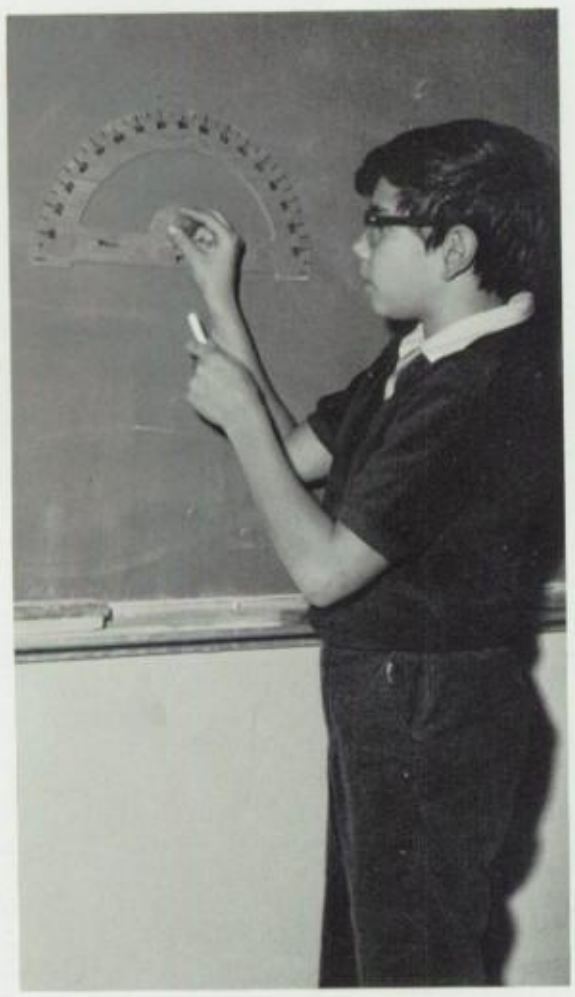


Mr. Hess always sends his students to the board to work difficult math problems.

Board work plays an important part in the Jr. High Math classes.



Students demonstrate new modern math procedures



George Bodanza uses the protractor for math problem.

Working with triangles is a part of the seventh grade Math course.

Mr. Henry keeps his classes at work.

David Schaffer works with modern math equipment.

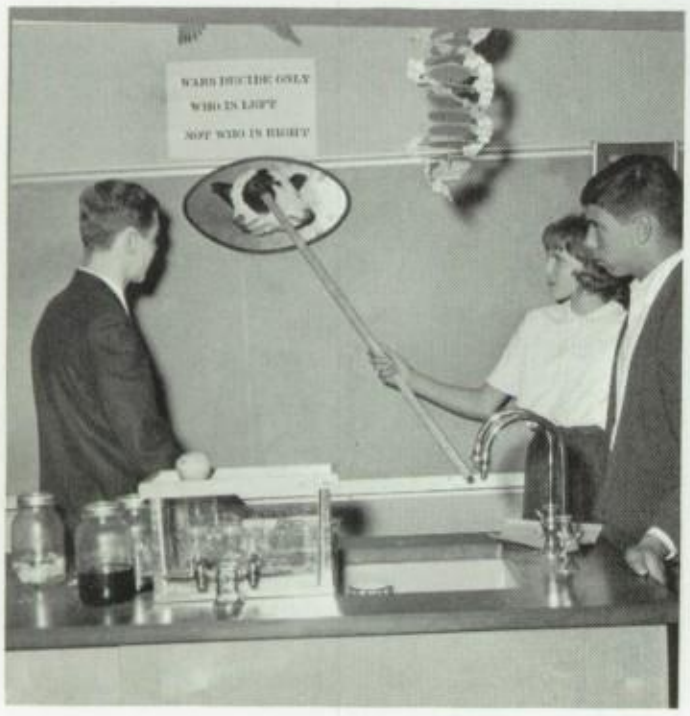
Science Courses Stimulate Imaginations of Students

"Oh my, look at this," exclaims Krott! Putt continues to mix the chemicals.

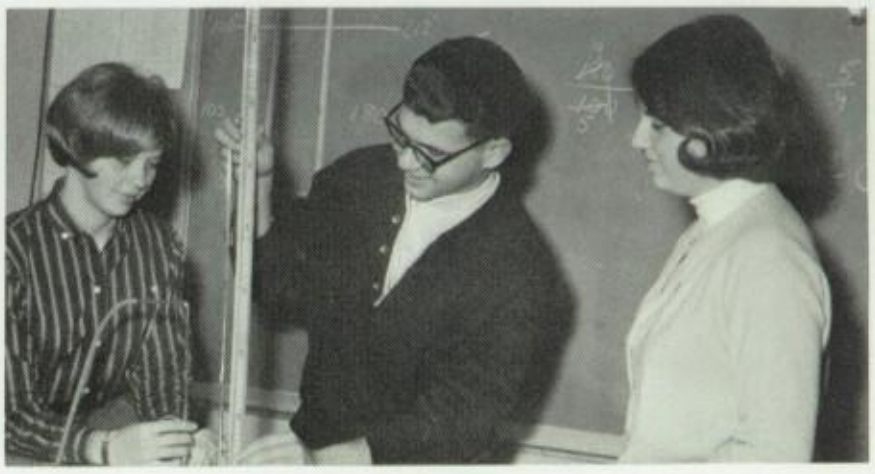
The study of science helps the student to understand himself and the universe around him. It will prepare the student to make sound decisions, arrived at through a logical analysis of all the available facts. Science concerns itself with such varied subjects as ions and atoms, DNA molecules, frogs, igneous rocks and the laws of motion and solar systems.

Our students should be able to use scientific concepts and principles in problem solving and apply these to their future endeavors.

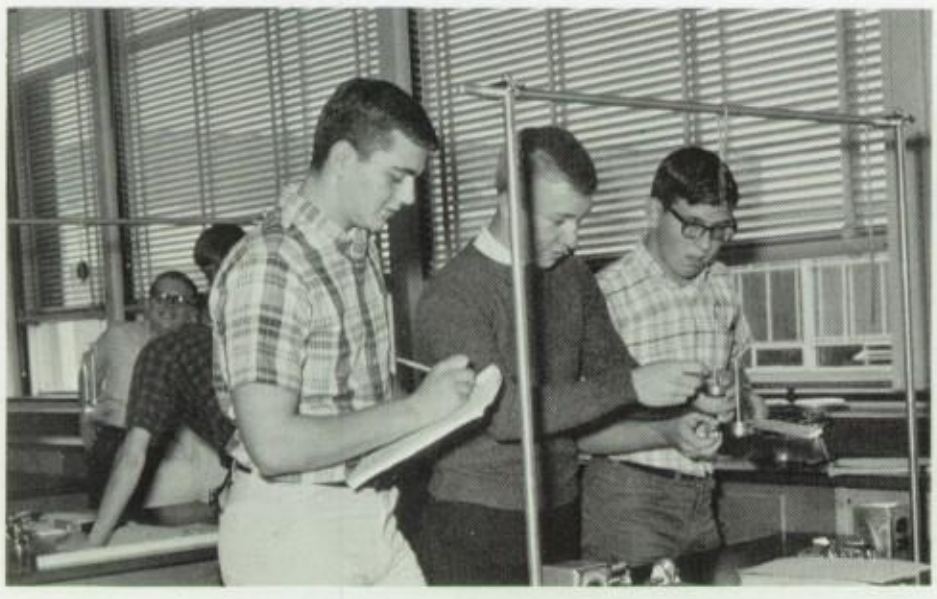
Scott Speicher conducts chemistry experiment as classmates look on.



Biology students observe one of the mysteries of life.



Hertzog, Seidel, and Allen measure pressure in Chem. Class.



R. Behney, and D. Lutz works with a pulley system in Physics Class. L. Wolfe accurately records the procedures.

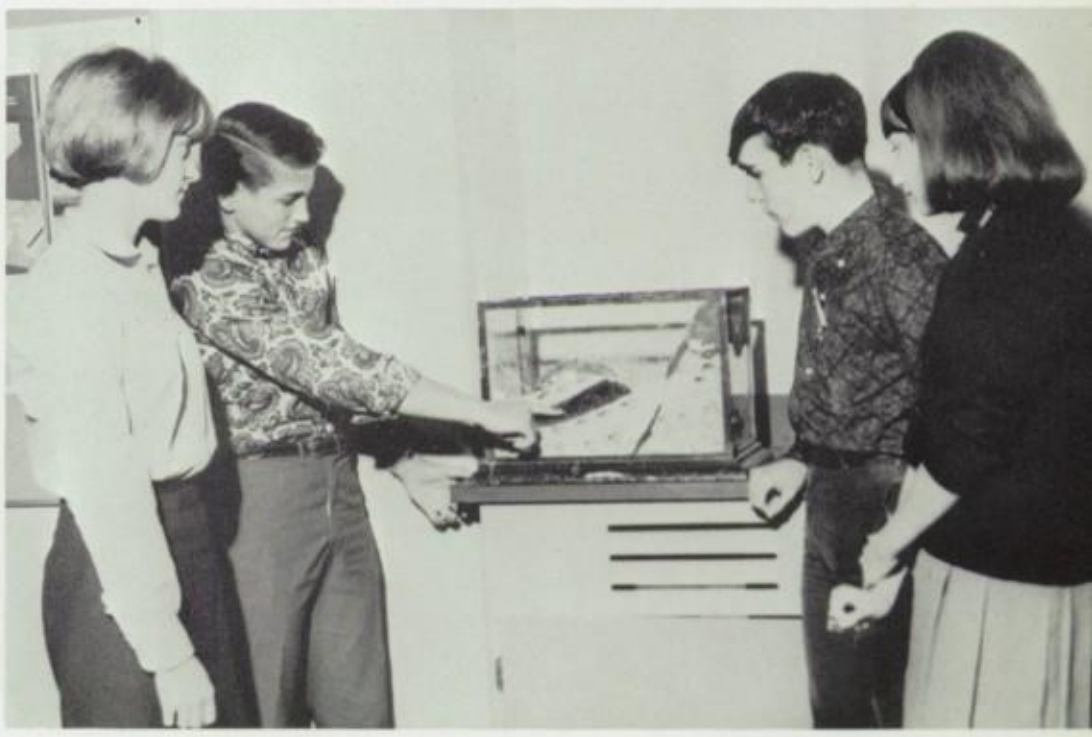
Eleventh grade science students prepare to use the distilling apparatus.

Mr. C. McComsey shows steps in refining steel to members of the 8th grade science class.

P. Geiss, B. Snyder, S. Klopp, and D. Hess study a project in order to obtain a better understanding of our earth.

R. LaFollete shows a map of the heavens to S. Speck and L. Lutz.

C. Schofer takes time out to check science note-books.



P. Hertzog, G. Werner, B. Glassmoyer, and M. Schermick study causes behind geographical structures.

Students Approve the Language Department's Curriculum

The principal objectives of all the language courses are to develop proficiency among students in speaking, in writing, and in reading their particular language.

The courses in Latin include a good classical background in the customs and history of the Romans, and especially, an enrichment of English vocabulary through a study of English derivatives.

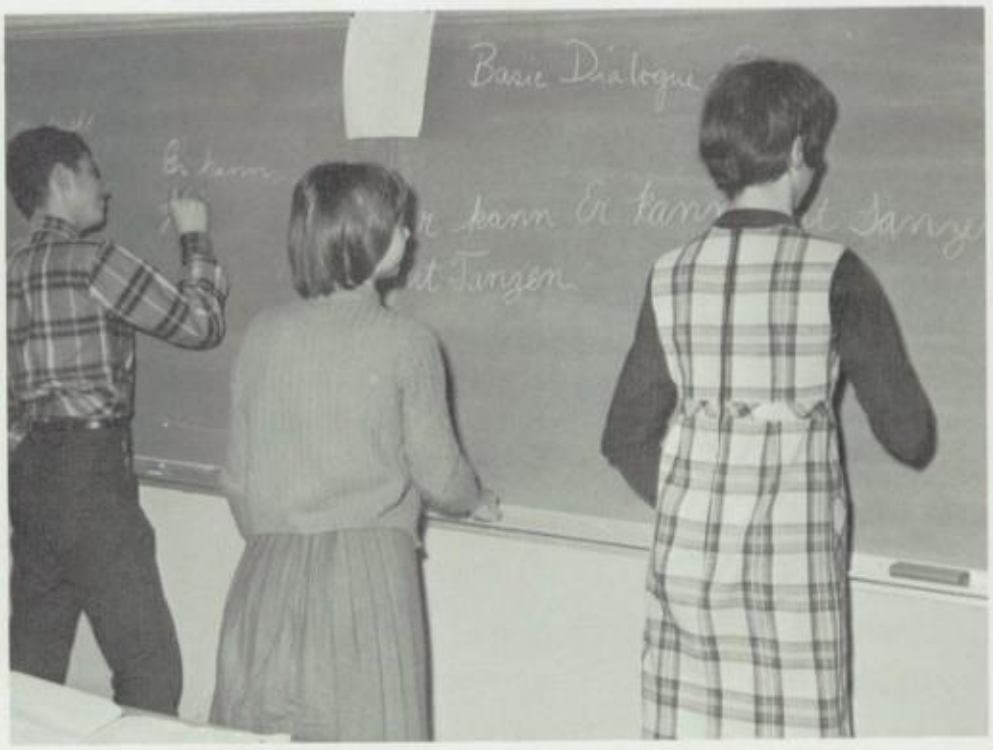
Much stress is also placed on German culture. This year, the senior high classes were assigned individual and group projects which help to bring Germany into the classroom.

Spanish is a very beautiful and rewarding language, worth learning for itself and for its remarkable adaptability to all purposes of life and civilization.

First year Latin students serve as slaves at banquet.

Every year the Latin department stages an elaborate banquet.

Every German student enjoys learning German Christmas carols.



Seventh grade students try writing correct German sentences.

Mr. Reber gets first chance at breaking pinata.

Miss Andruzak's collection of "authentic" Mexican articles.

Banditos at Spanish banquet plan--?

Commercial Course Paves the Way

Attractive bulletin boards are a part of commercial projects.

"Darn Hangnail"

Business education is concerned with the development of vocational skills and knowledge of the students in two specific areas. The first is in the graduate's initial employment and advancement in a career, and the second is in his personal economics and understanding of our economic system.

Office occupations constitute one of the fastest growing employment groups in the labor market. It is therefore our prime objective to adequately prepare our students to fill these jobs with maximum vocational competency.

Cheryl Delong demonstrates the new transcribing machine.

"But Miss Yost, I did do my homework!"

Typing is an essential part in today's business course.

"Watch this one Dennis" . . .

Commercial students busily at work

Marie Homyack demonstrates the Merchant Rotator.

Not so fast Marce . . .

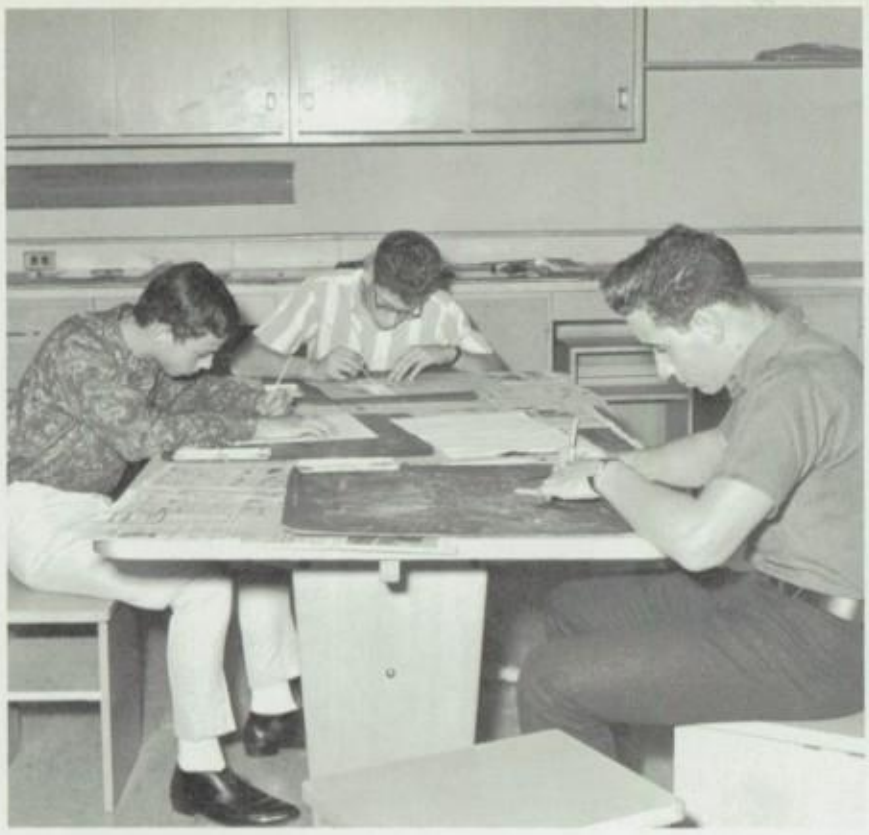
"But Sharan, the guy doesn't have a mustache"

Students Gain Cultural Experience Through Art

An interesting display case of advanced student work is always kept by Mr. Alexander.

The art program provides art experiences which are essential in development of self-realization of the whole individual by integrating his imaginative, creative, intellectual, emotional and manual capacities, and social maturity and responsibility through cultivating a deepened understanding of the problems, ideals, and the goals of other individuals and social groups. Art instruction provides and sharpens the individuals perception of aesthetic qualities, increases art knowledge and skills, and causes the student to realize that art had its roots in everyday living and experiences. Through experiences found in the art program students develop such traits as cooperation, neatness, self-reliance, respect for others, a sense of responsibility, respect for equipment, self-confidence and good citizenship.

Besides working on art projects, students also study the subject.



J. Hahn, W. Chipperfield, and W. Chipperfield are working on their art projects.

Designing and painting posters are requirements for ninth grade students.

J. Hafer and D. Manbeck admire the attractive pictures drawn by their classmates.

Mr. Alexander supervises as his students put the finishing touches on their art projects.

Wood Industry Thoroughly Explored

Industrial Arts is an essential part of general education. It is the study changes made by man in the forms of materials to increase their values. It is the broad study of materials, tools, processes products, and jobs of the various industries.

Wood, metal, and drawing are the ones offered at C.W. from grades 7 through 12.

Ask any grade 7 boy if he likes shop. An enthusiastic, "Yes sir!" is his answer. Gerhart, Martin and Schwartz busily working.

Grade 12 I.A. boys busy making gun cabinets and other useful items.

Barry Boyer finishing his head board.

28 grade 7 E boys enjoy their work.

Scott Resslen says "No, I'm not a wheel." It's going to be a coffee table!"

Everline, Allan, Evans, Baum, Gruber and Wilkinson listen to a lecture on finishing wood.

"Say, which one of you guys took my pencil?"

"I think it's set just right," Wartluft informs Saurbaugh.

All Phases of the Metal Industry Examined.

All C.W. students are introduced to the various methods of metal working such as machining and welding. Included is a course in industrial drawing and planning. Beginning and advanced drawing is also offered to the academic students.

Several trips to local industrial plants round out the experience of the I.A. major class of grade 11.

"This soldering iron is hot enough," exclaims R. Davis.

Strickler and Thorne examine a production job--candle holders.

Phillip Hays struggles with making his tin box. He is using box and pan brake. Hoover is enjoying his cutting!

Ernest Loser polishes his brass portion of the candle holder his class is making.

"Heat is required to bend metal", Frey informs Reazor, of grade 11.

Schaeffer and Miller assemble the candle holders.

Titlow examines a trap made by Schaeffer. Huntley approves.

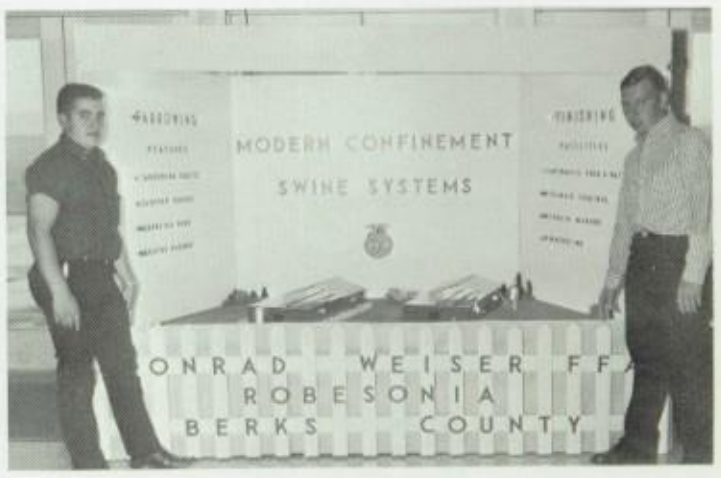
Darkes, Kiphorn, Klopp, Miller, and Schaeffer, of grade 8 absorbed in working with tin.

Vo. Ag. Course Continues To Grow.

The primary objective of the vocational agriculture program is to develop well rounded individuals, well equipped to assume responsible roles in the field of agriculture and in all phases in the lives of its graduates. The program aims to do this by fulfilling several more specific objectives. Of primary importance is the skills needed by individuals preparing to enter farming, or agricultural occupations other than farming. The program also aims to develop an understanding and appreciation of career opportunities in agriculture.

F.F.A. Officers for the 66-67 term shown above are, R. Kramer, H. Myer, N. Blatt, D. Darkes, D. Sattazahn, R. Troutman, C. Frey, R. Knauer.

County members look on as judge explains the results of the county corn growing contest.



Hershey Myer and Robert Kramer pose with the exhibit they helped build.

"This hasp is a nice fit", Mr. Summers tells Brian Ream. The object is a tool chest.

(Below) Richard Troutman puts the finishing touch to his show box he will use at summer fairs.

Gerhart, Frey, and Ream, examine newly completed toolbox.

Troutman, Hatt, Ollar, and Stricker observe Mr. Barrett plant nutrients.

"Add water to this one," says Lamm to Getz as they water plants at the greenhouse.

Gelsinger and Ream chat as they complete landscape work. Lamm and Fry help.

Jack Seese readies steam cleaner to remove grease and dirt from tractor.

Stricker, Wanner, Zimmerman and others prepare lesson on corn planting

"Now let's see where do these wires go?" Gelsinger ponders.

Home Economics Course

Bonnie Geho and Fern Zettlemoyer help serve a tea prepared for the faculty by Home Ec. students.

Classes are sometimes honored to have guest speakers to demonstrate and speak on various subjects.

Mrs. Weidman demonstrates how to correctly place the sleeves in a dress.

Girls get a chance to sample what they make. This can either be scrumptuous or fatal.

One of the first things Jr. High classes learn is how to handle the sewing machine.

Making cakes is a project all girls enjoy.

Prepares Future Homemakers

Homemaking is taught to make girls more aware of the many problems facing a career girl and homemaker of today so she may be able to cope with situations and find satisfactory solutions for them. This course will prepare girls for the tremendous responsibilities awaiting them which will involve the health and welfare of those for whom they will be continually answerable during their lives.

It looks as if everyone is enjoying the tea which the students sponsor every year for the Faculty.

Laying out patterns is a first step in making clothing.

Practice Makes perfect, girls . . .

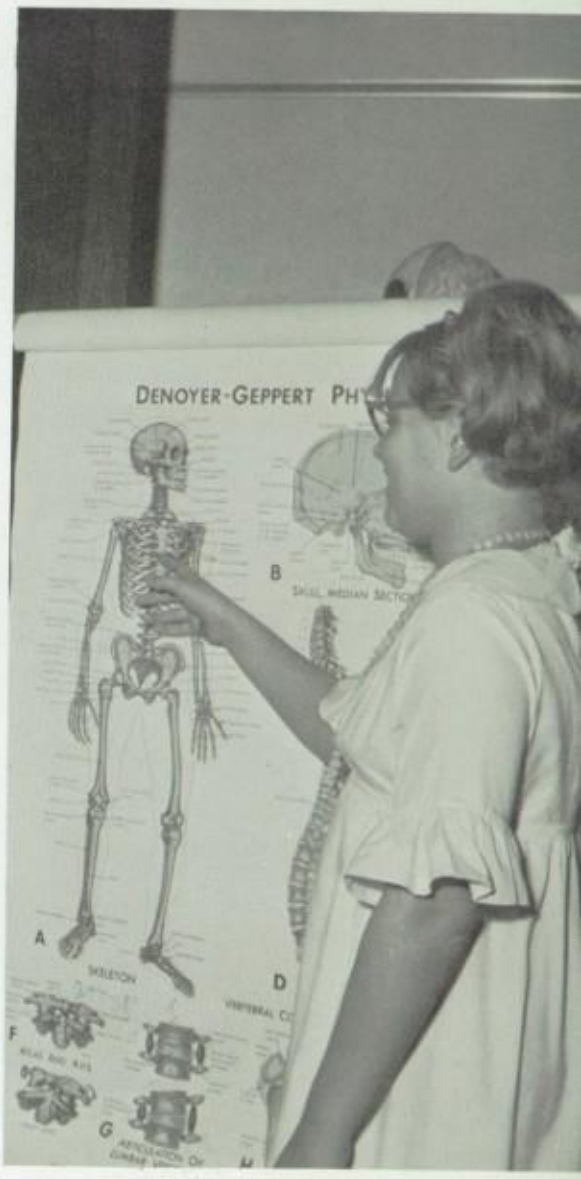
Jr. High girls must learn to cut patterns accurately and correctly. In the picture at the left, B. Weaver helps another classmate to carefully place the pattern.

Students Benefit from C.W. Health Classes

Let's see. That is the sternum, this is the, uhhhh.

The four aims for teaching health are: (1) to present sufficient anatomy for the student to understand the basic structures of his body and enough physiology to understand its function; (2) to give the student a useful basic knowledge of organic and functional disease; (3) to provide practical information relating to the prevention of disease; (4) to improve the student's health and his attitudes toward it.

Drawings clarify the parts of the human body in students minds.



D. Kintzer studies a chart on the skeletal system.

Health Suite

Two health students quiz each other on the different muscles of the body.

"Hey, let's take it easy". . . .

All Conrad Weiser students have their teeth examined by the Dental Hygienist, Miss Hamaker.

Beautiful shot!

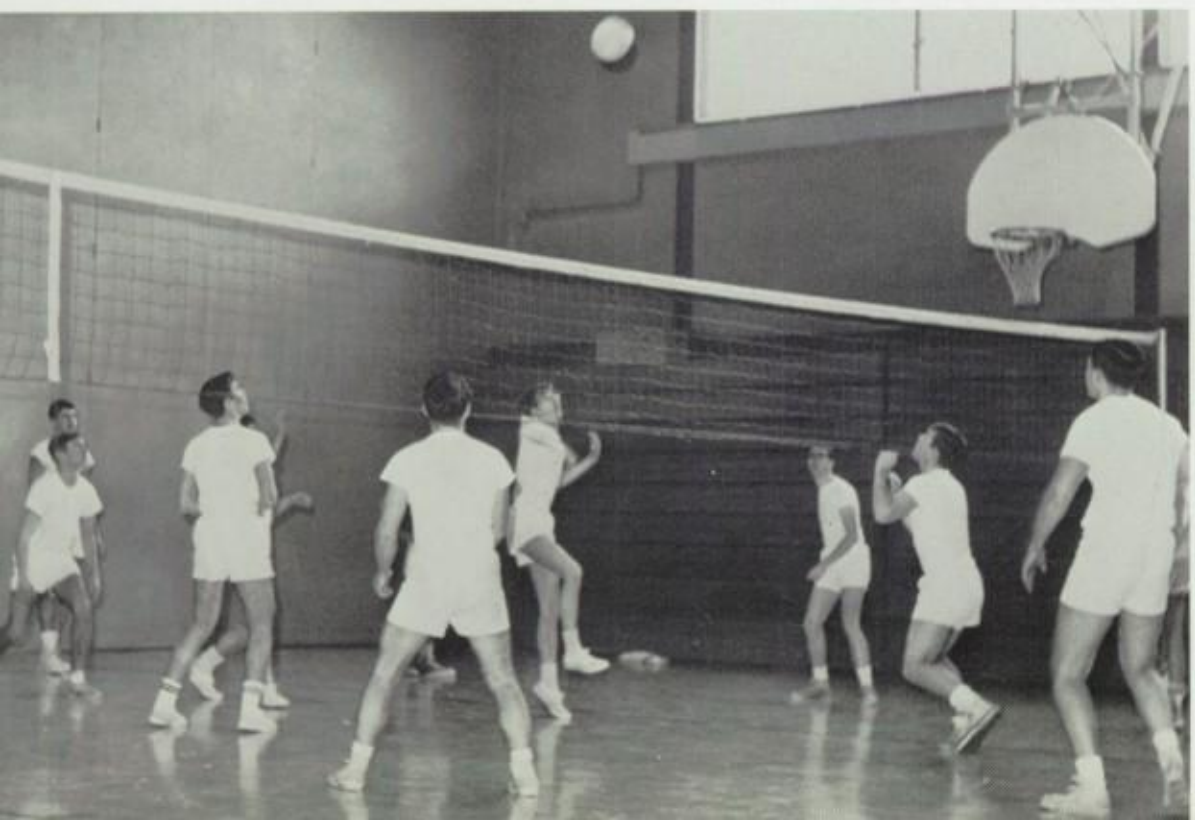
Smile, girls!

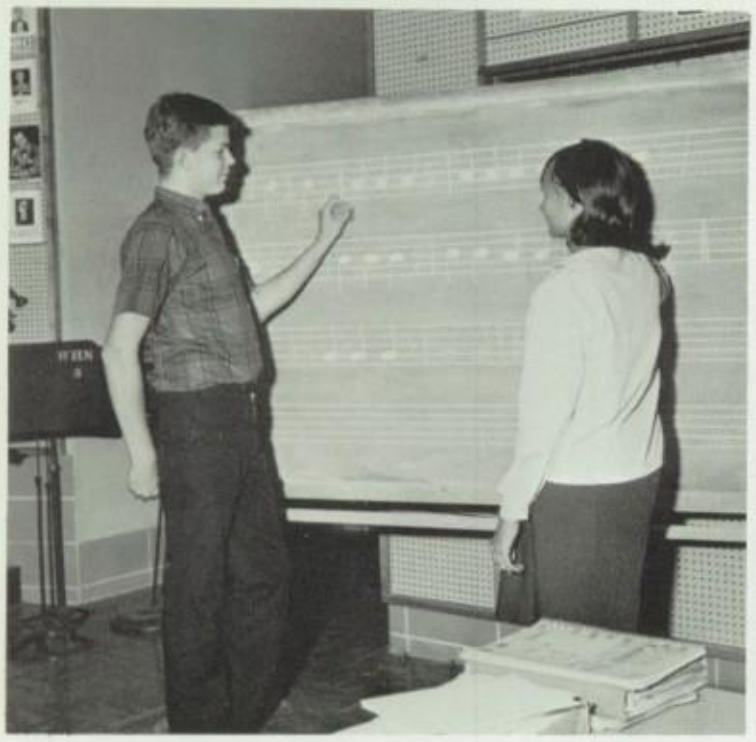
Gym Classes Develop Youth Fitness

The objectives of the physical education course include the introduction of physical activities designed to meet the needs of the various age groups in terms of physical fitness requirements, leadership development, emotional outlet, knowledge of the manner on which the physical body is capable of moving, and future needs of recreation. We wish to give each person a chance to develop to the fullest extent of his individual capabilities, so that each finds a measure of success.

Lets hustle, guys.

Marilyn Snyder demonstrates the use of the balance beam.





Remember, Jack, the spaces are FACE.

Listening to top performers on records furthers students appreciation of music.

Students learn to identify great musicians and their style of music.

Students Enjoy Music Curriculum Presented by C.W.

It is the purpose of the music department to provide for every student a better understanding of the many different kinds of music in the world today.

Through general music classes a student may learn about musical instruments, opera, folk songs, composers, and various compositions.

There are also five vocal groups at Conrad Weiser where a student who enjoys singing may participate in the various musical experiences provided during the school year. It is felt that music can bear a rich and rewarding experience as well as something that can be enjoyed forever.

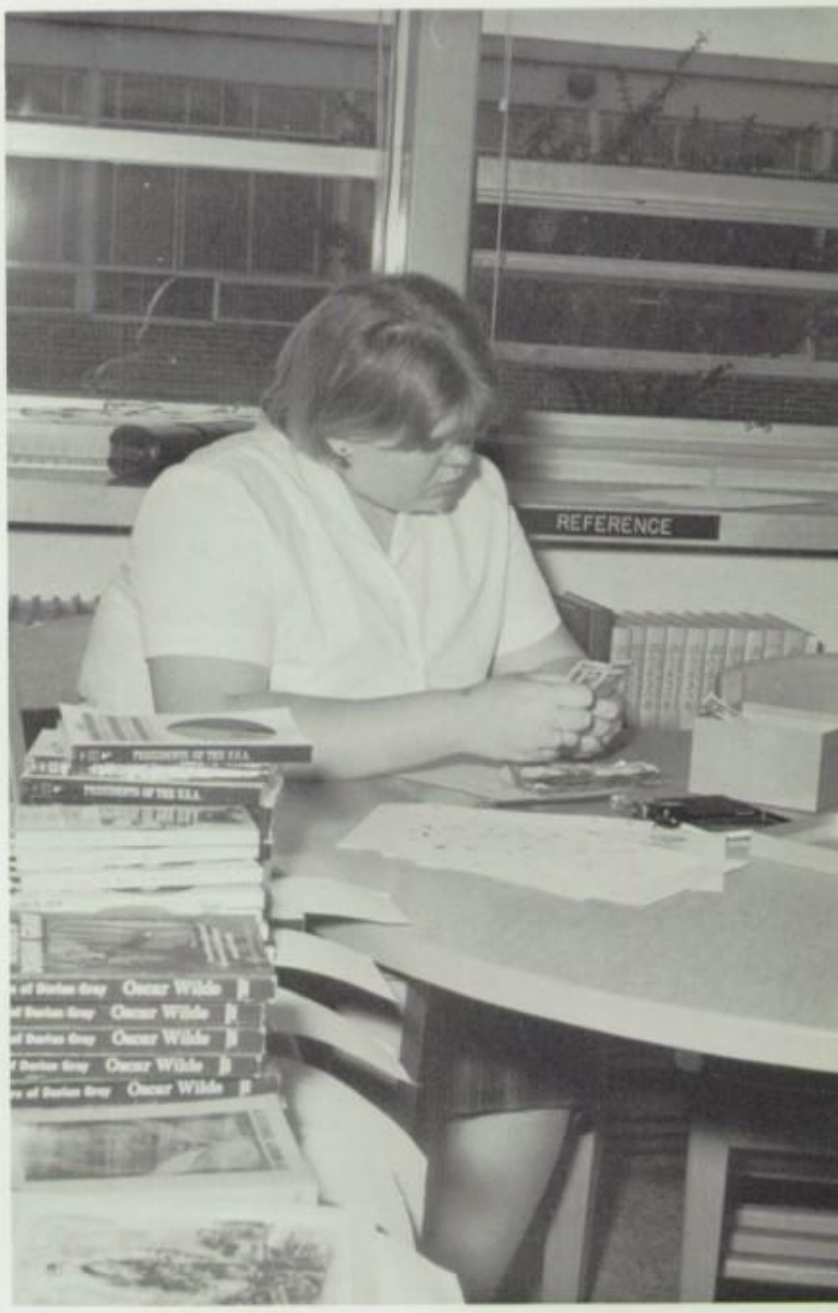
Singing brightens the day for 8th graders.

D. Snyder and R. Spayd look at snaps of plays put on by the senior chorus.

Library Aids Entire Student Body

The Conrad Weiser High School Library has grown to a collection of over 9000 books and is now hopefully truly a center for both academic research and recreational reading in our school. With an average daily circulation of about 150 books and magazines, and at least 300 students in and out of the Library every day, it is a very busy place. However, we look forward to ever increasing use of the Library especially in the field of independent study and honest-to-goodness reading to learn.

Students take advantage of Library Periodicals.



Oh Well, they'll never know . . .

The Book Fair, sponsored every year by the Library and Business Dept., attracts many of Conrad Weiser's LITERARY students . . .???

The library is also used as a source for research, reference material, and pastime reading material.

Jr. High students learn the uses of the card catalog.

Guidance Office: Refuge for High School Students

L. Bean and D. Niethamer receive college board scores from Mrs. Krott.

Instructional-type experiences are not enough in themselves to fulfill personal and educational development. A student seldom has an opportunity to view and express himself clearly, honestly, and without need of defense. Self-awareness and personal perspectives to make decisions appropriate to his own needs and values, is the learning area of the Guidance Department. There personal frames of references are enlarged and recorded during six formative years.

Mrs. Lahr helps S. Miller and J. Bricker decide on colleges.

Driver Training Prepares Students for Highway Responsibilities

Mr. Snyder explains shifting on an automatic to J. Mountz.

S. Schaeffer has his reaction time tested.

Objectives of the classroom phase may be listed as follows:

1. To orient the student in the complexities of the modern age;

2. To provide basic information on the car and how it runs;

3. To develop responsibility for observing traffic laws;

4. To acquaint students with practices that are important in producing good traffic citizens. Here the emphasis is on attitudes.

Objectives in Practice Driving are:

To provide for the establishment of those habits and skills which form the basic principles of safety and which are necessary for efficient performance as a driver.

Mr. Snyder checks students peripheral vision.

Weiser Triumphs, 76-64, Takes West Leadership

Conrad Weiser High's Scouts blasted Muhlenberg Township High from the unbeaten ranks in the Berks Scholastic Basketball League's Western Division Friday night by beating the Muhls, 76-64, before a capacity crowd.

Dave Weitzel and Jim Kuhn racked the punch for coach Wilson Hartranft's cagers, who now lead the wheel with a 5-0 record. Weitzel and Kuhn divided 40 points. Rich Randall was high for Bob Millard's Muhls with 18 tallies.

Weiser got off to a 19-18 lead in the first quarter on the shooting of Kuhn, who tallied seven points, and Rick Fidler, who dropped five.

Weiser hiked the score to 37-27 at the half. With 2:11 gone in the quarter and the score at 55-38, the Scouts reeled off eight straight points, with Weitzel, Jim Lord, Fidler scoring field goals and Kuhn donating two free throws, to make the score 33-24.

Al Murray stopped the splurge with a drive-in before Lord notched a bucket on a jumper. Weitzel followed with a free throw and Randall counted on a technical foul.

With 3:15 to play in the third quarter, Muhlenberg knotted the count at 42-all on Steve Mitti's corner shot. Weitzel, however scored on a fast break, Kuhn tallied on a foul shot and Weitzel came back with a jump shot to boost the count to 47-42. The period ended with the Scouts in the van, 55-45.

The figures were 70-51 when Hartranft lifted the regulars in place of the reserves, who managed to tally six points.

visiting Schuylkill Valley Panthers, 49-47, for win No. 3 against one defeat. Kirk Berger led Bob Kautter's Mustangs with 18 points to share the sharpshooting honors with Valley's Bob Elbert.

Schuylkill Valley dominated the first half, leading 23-10 at the end of the initial quarter and 29-27 at the conclusion of the second frame. An 18-point splurge by the Mustangs in the third period virtually clinched the win for the Mifflin crew. Valley was held to eight points in the quarter.

D. Grimes and T. Gerhart enjoy relaxing in the snack bar. They are checking the quality of the supplies!

Varied Assembly Programs

Early season pep rally stimulates students.

Myrtle Moyer provides inspiring organ music for National Honor Program

Many students receive awards for athletic activity.

Mohn and Himmelberger accompany musical group in the Christmas assembly

Students provide "living picture" of the birth of Jesus Christ in the annual Christmas assembly.

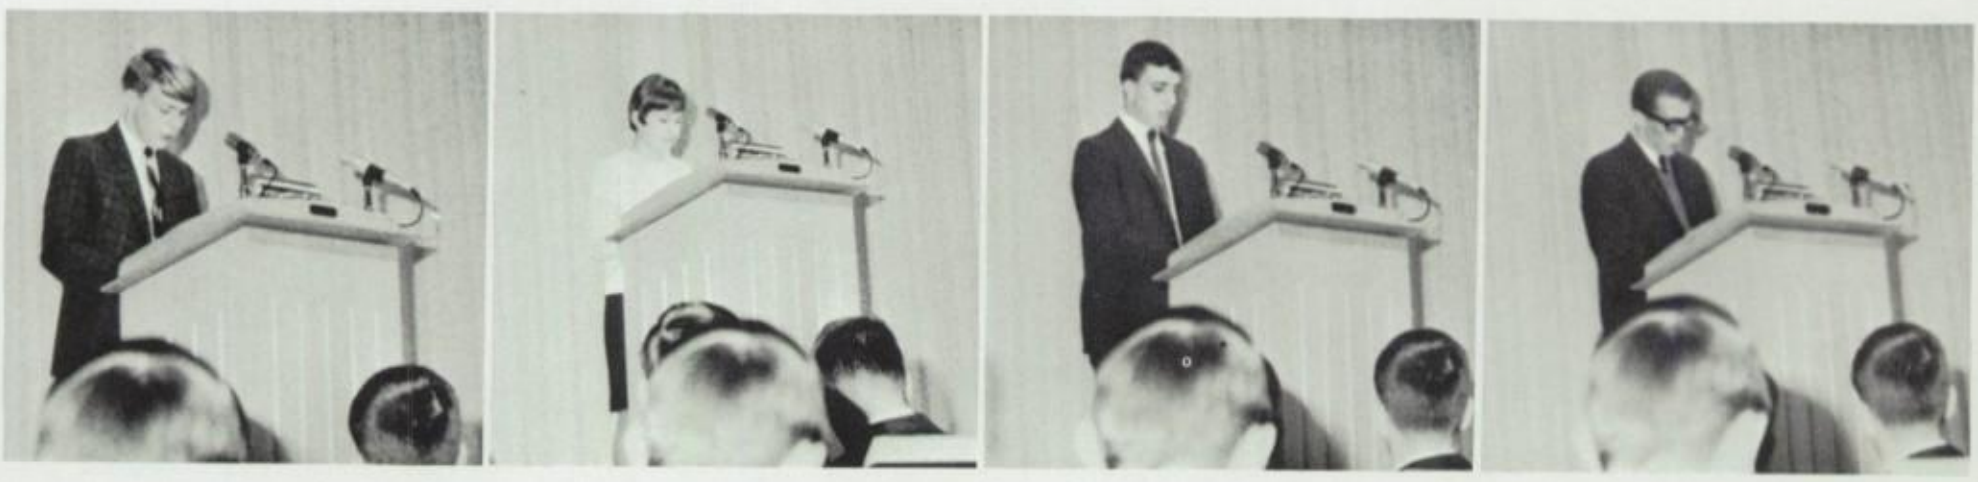
Entertain Weiser Students

Franco, Adams, Speicher, Schaeffer, Miller, and Speicher study their notes as Brian Wingenroth posts the score for audience. Many educational programs enhance a well rounded series of school assemblies. Time is provided for senior high, junior high, and joint assemblies.

Deibert, Monroe, Bastian, and Wolfe, admire the strength of 67 year old ex-wrestling champ.

T. Gerhart, Voice of Democracy contest winner.

L. Tothero, program announcer



Everline, Colove, Fidler, and Geiss were finalists in the Voice of Democracy contest sponsored by the English Dept.

Billy Levan and his orchestra delighted the guests till for into the night.

Weiser students mix with guests from other schools. L. Benevit, P. Patschke, A. Stevens, S. Schaeffer, P. Hummel, and J. Backenstose.

Christmas Dance

Mr. Hess, faculty advisor to the senior class, and his wife enjoyed themselves immensely.

The punch bowl was busy all night.

The dance is sponsored each year by the senior class. Above is the president, J. Bailey and his date, D. Trout.

"Sure it's a dance, but we've got to rest sometime," says K. Rentschler to M. Jenkins.

The Senior Dance Band provided music for the Valentine Dance.

The new King and Queen of Hearts pose with last year's King and Queen and the court.

Bouquets were given to everyone--including the King. D. Grimes does the pinning.

King and Queen

Mr. Breininger called for the square dancing. Bruce Kline assists. "All join hands ---"

Square Dancing turned out to be the hit of the evening. "Swing your partner!"

"That was MY line, Betsy" . . . . . .

What's this, a fight among the Big Four? David tries to calm them down.

Teenage parts are played by Elsa Krott and Skip Behney. "May I carve your initials on this tree Zanetta?"

Talent shines through. Elsa and Art steal the show with this performance.

Broadway Hit Show . . . Music Man Thrills C.W. Music Patrons

The music and drama departments, directed by Miss Murdough and Mr. Mills and Mrs. Behney, present another stellar performance. The Weicon staff photographer stopped in to look over a rehearsal. The engaging pictures resulted!

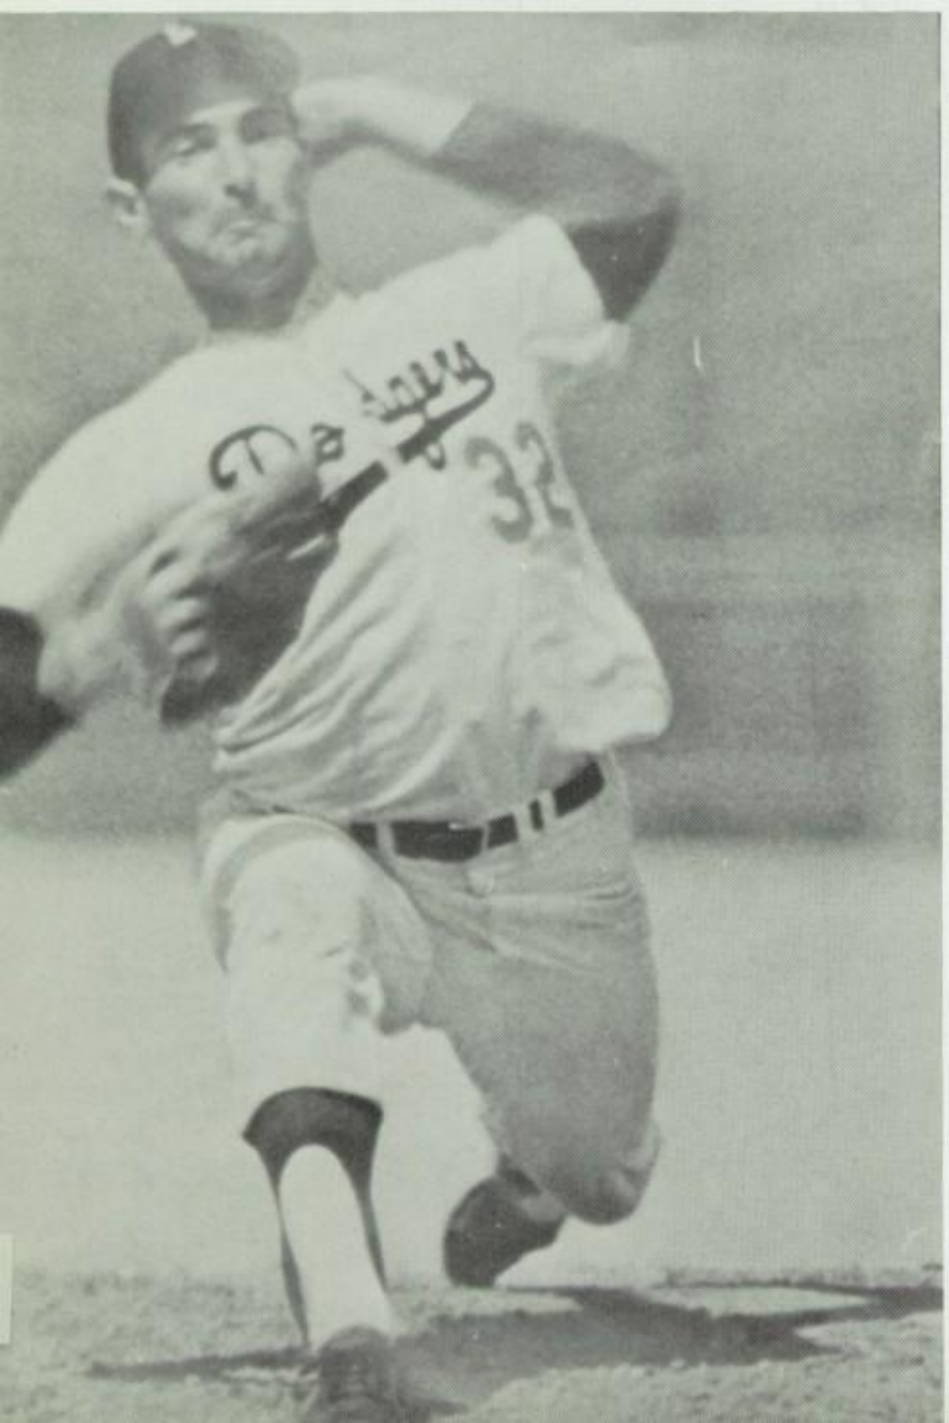
The quartet serenades L. Gelsinger, B. Lape and E. Krott. Obviously the song meets with the girls' approval! The barbershop harmony also delighted the audience.

Even in the most solemn rehearsal, you can be sure there is fun when K. Rentchler, A. Knoll, J. Beidler, and S. Lutz team up.

David and Betsy rehearse long hours to insure perfection.

As Skip croons to the tune of "Till There Was You", Art tussles with big Bill. The fight was caused by a sour rendition!

Decisive U.S. News Breaks



As the yearbook theme implies, our country has faced many times for decision. The decisions were sometimes shocking, a few historical, and many political. They all affected the class of '67.

These pictures serve to remind us of the momentous events of our senior year. They also remind us that we must now help in the shaping of the future. Perhaps one of us may appear on a page similar to this in the year 19??.

1. James Meredith was shot while trying to walk through his native state of Mississippi.

2. Two U.S. soldiers flee for cover while fighting the Viet Cong.

3. President Johnson greets U.S. fighting men in S. Vietnam.

4. Soldiers' faces mirror the terrible miseries of war.

5. An arthritic arm forces great pitcher Sandy Koufax to retire at the peak of his career.

6. The U.S. was shocked to learn of the deaths of Astronauts White, Grissom, and Chaffe, who died in the performance of their duties. (Circled in white) With other members of the space team are White (standing) and Grissom (sitting). Not pictured is Chaffee

7. Space walks highlight Gemini Program.

8. U.S. orbits many Gemini capsules in 1966.

9. U.S. women boycott grocery stores in protest of high food prices.

10. Puff of smoke from Texas University Administration Building reveals hiding place of Charles Whitman, slayer of 14.
